ABOUT FIKILE MOETI

Fikile Moeti, commonly known as "Fix" is a well-known South African radio presenter; DJ and TV Personality.

Fix, made MTV history when she became the first female VJ on 'MTV networks Africa'.

The entrepreneurial beauty has graced our screens since 2006 when she won a nationwide competition to become MTV base's newest presenter. Fix at the time a student at Cape Town University studying Film & Media, was picked from obscurity by MTV base from thousands of applicants and immediately joined the fast track.

Since then the multi-talented entertainer also joined the 5FM team. Fix went onto hosting her very own dance show called 'Saturday Night Fix' between 22h00 and 01h00 playing the best of Electronic Dance Music (EDM) where she discovered many bedroom DJ's, giving them an opportunity to showcase their DJ skills on her show.

Currently, Fix is the co-host of the "Forbes & Fix Show", which airs daily on 5fm between 12pm-3pm.

SOCIAL ENTREPRENEUR

Fix always believed that the arts and social entrepreneurship are not mutually exclusive. In order to make this belief a reality, Fix went back to school, studying Small Business/ Entrepreneurship at both Columbia College Chicago and New York University, after 6 years in the entertainment industry.

Constantly striving to enhance herself as a Social Entrepreneur, Fix continued her studies by enrolling at the Gordon Institute of Business Science (GIBS) for the Social Entrepreneurship Certificate Program (SECP).

Since graduating, she has partnered with GIBS to start a social enterprise called the Fix Scholarship, where she offers educational opportunities to female social innovators in Africa.

SPEAKER

In October 2016, Fix was invited to host her first TedX Talk in Johannesburg. In a humorously delivered talk, Fix reveals the secret of her adoption and how it brought about fears and insecurities.

She mentioned how she constantly feared not being smart enough throughout primary school and how she always faced anxiety for not being as 'book smart' as her older sister and high-flying grandmothers, who were great achievers in their respective fields. She went on to speak about how she found her "other smart" through swimming and waterpolo.

FIX SCHOLARSHIP

The Fix Scholarship is a non-profit organisation that offers opportunities, in the form of bursaries; scholarships and leadership, to female social innovators who pursue entrepreneurial solutions for urgent social development challenges.

Its flagship programme gives female social entrepreneurs the opportunity to complete the Gordon Institute of Business Science' (GIBS) Social Entrepreneurship course. The course is aimed at assisting entrepreneurs to make impactful social and economic change within their communities as well as an opportunity to be awarded capital to maintain or start-up their enterprise.

Since 2013, the Fix Scholarship has remained true to its belief in giving women power through education, mentorship and leadership, which is evident with the current Alumni of 15 Fix Scholars.

Over-and-above being a mother, entertainer and saving the world Fix is also an avid sports lover. Having received provincial colours for swimming and national colours for Women's Waterpolo in South Africa, Fix loves to defy the odds and challenge the mind & body.
